

FUN AT HOME

THURSDAY

Rack Your Brain

Your mummy or papa will read out the clues to you. Listen to them and match the clues with the pictures.

Changes to water when kept in the sun

Can be used only after breaking

Comes down but never goes up

Hard like a stone and grows in our mouth

Has hands but cannot hold anything

Newspaper Folding

Take small sheets of an old newspaper. Have fun folding them in different ways with an adult. You can fold the sheet horizontally, vertically, diagonally and in many other ways.

Little Red Riding Hood

Red Riding Hood was a little girl who always wore a red hood. One day her mother said to her, "Red Riding Hood, please take these fruits to your grandmother. She is not well. But remember not to talk to any strangers on the way." Red Riding Hood took the basket from the mother's hand and left.

The grandmother lived on the other side of the forest. Just as Little Red Riding Hood entered the forest, a wolf met her. Little Red Riding Hood forgot what her mother had said and started talking to him.

"Where are you going, Little Red Riding Hood?" the wolf asked.

"To meet my grandmother who is unwell."

"Where does your grandmother live, Little Red Riding Hood?"

"She lives in a cottage near the apple tree on the other side of the forest," replied Little Red Riding Hood.

The wolf thought to himself, "I must go fast to her grandma's cottage so that I can eat both of them."

The wolf ran straight to the grandmother's cottage and found her sleeping. He entered the cottage and gulped her whole. Then he put on her new clothes, wore her cap, drew the curtains and lay in her bed.

Red Riding Hood reached the cottage after some time. She went to the bed and found her grandmother looking very strange.

"Oh, grandmother," Red Riding Hood said, "what big ears you have."

"The better to hear you with, my child," was the reply.

"But, grandmother, what big eyes you have," she said.

"The better to see you with, my dear."

"Oh, but, grandmother, what a big mouth you have."

"The better to eat you with."

Saying this, the wolf sat up on the bed to catch Red Riding Hood.

Little Red Riding Hood screamed very loudly and ran away from the bed.

A woodcutter was cutting wood outside the cottage. He heard a scream and came inside. He saw the wolf getting up to catch Red Riding Hood. He quickly hit the wolf with his axe. The wolf got hurt and ran out. The woodcutter ran behind him.

The woodcutter caught the wolf by the tail. Then, he cut open the wolf's stomach and took grandmother out. Red Riding Hood also came out of the cottage. They thanked the woodcutter and he left.

Red Riding Hood felt very bad for what had happened. She said, "I am very sorry Grandma. I promise I'll never talk to strangers now." Grandma smiled and hugged Red Riding Hood and they went inside.

Moral of the story: Never talk to strangers. They can harm you.
